The 1972 Golden West National Morgan Horse Show will make its fourth appearance at the Monterey Fairgrounds, Monterey, on June 30, July 1 and 2. The annual three-day, nationally accredited horse show will feature America's first breed of horse, the Morgan, in a variety of classes demonstrating its beauty, versatility and special qualities and characteristics.

According to Roy Coats, chairman of the show, "We expect the 1972 Golden West National to be our largest and most successful, with many of the most outstanding Morgans in the western United States already scheduled to participate. We're especially pleased again to have our show on the famous Monterey Peninsula, one of the most beautiful vacation areas in the country."

The record should show that our cover personality last week, Arnold Palmer, did not win the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach. Jack Nicklaus as expected did, but Arnie was a surprise 3rd place finisher four strokes back at 294. Record crowds showed up, and no doubt some records were set by TV watchers around the nation, who received saturation treatment of the biggest golfing event of the year. ABC-TV worked in a few additional glamour shots of the Monterey Peninsula area, and without a doubt must have made millions of Americans envious of our incomparable environment.

Camp Quien Sabe, the Monterey Parks and Recreation Department summer camp is open to people of the Carmel Valley area and all other Peninsula as well as central coast communities. The camp will be operating this summer with programs for younger children, teen-agers, and families.

For the family there is the family weekend camp. Two sessions are planned, the afternoon of June 30 through July 2 and the afternoon of July 14 through July 16. The program provides a full weekend of activities at Camp Quien Sabe in Big Sur for fifteen families. The cost of the camp is $9.00 for adults (12 and over), $5.00 for children aged 5 to 11 and $2.00 for children under four years. The fee covers everything but transportation. The family needs only to provide sleeping bags and clothing. All cooking will be done by the camp cook staff. A program of activities is planned to involve all members of the family.

The regular Quien Sabe camping program for children aged 7½ through 13 years is an unusually successful, low key, quiet one; that provides a really fun week of camping for quiet children as well as the more active ones.

There are three five day sessions of Quien Sabe children's camp; June 26, July 3 and July 10. The fee for each session will be $32 for Monterey residents and $37 for non-residents. The activity program is well planned to include nature activities, campcraft projects, hikes, swimming, music activities, wilderness skills, and an unforgetable group living experience.

More information about various Quien Sabe programs may be obtained by phoning 372-8121, ext. 281. Reservations may be made at the Monterey Parks and Recreation office, 546 Dutra Street, Monterey (in back of Colton Hall).

Wood endorses Coastal Initiative

Assemblyman Bob Wood (R-Monterey County) said Monday in Sacramento that he is endorsing the California Coastal Initiative which will probably be on the November election ballot.

Wood said he was "very reluctant to endorse an initiative measure on such a complicated subject because it becomes extremely difficult to make changes in the law in the years to come." The Monterey County Assemblyman added that he felt it is "necessary to pass the Initiative because of the fact that during the past four legislative sessions, strong coastline protection bills have failed to pass. The people throughout California realize that the coastline is a fragile natural resource which must be protected or it will be lost. The people want a coastal protection law and this Initiative seems to be the only way they can get it."

The Coastal Initiative is patterned after the Sieroty-Grunsky coastline bills which were introduced this Session. After Senate rejection, it became apparent that no bill would pass this year. Wood said the regional commissions created by the Initiative would be composed of both appointed and elected officials in equal numbers. "This would guarantee that the local voters would always have a chance to express their opinions at an election. Having locally elected supervisors and city councilmen on the commission would insure that the feelings of the local community would be listened to."

Wood also said that "for the most part Regional Commissions would be concerned with large subdivisions and developments right on the beach. The average citizen living within a peninsula city, however, would probably never have to deal with the Commission. The intent of the Initiative is to protect the undeveloped areas along our coast."

Supervisors to see plans Tuesday for eastern Odello development

The Board of Supervisors will get its first look at a possible development plan for the eastern portion of the Odello ranch at a public hearing scheduled for 3 p.m. next Tuesday.

The board, acting as the official Redevelopment Agency for the property, will formally designate the entire 294 acres as its project area, and then give first consideration to a specific project plan for the 137 acres lying east of Highway 1.

Supervisor Willard Branson of Carmel Valley asked the board to hear the Odello plan next week because the State Department of Recreation must be assured that a project plan is underway in order to allocate up to $850,000 in next year's budget towards the purchase of the western 155 acres for a State Park. June 30 is the deadline for including this in the department's budget.

State participation in the public acquisition of the western half next year hinges on the premise that Monterey County will approve a redevelopment project on the east, and then sell tax increment bonds to help OLAF (the Odello Land Acquisition Fund) match the state's contribution.

Under this plan, it has been estimated that the county will need to raise approximately $500,000 through tax increment bonds.

On April 12, the Monterey County Planning Commission voted 7 to 2 to approve rezoning for 627 units on the east, broken down into a 300-unit hotel and 327 condominiums.

However, supervisors have indicated at subsequent hearings that they are not bound by the planning commission's action.

Late last month Supervisor Loren Smith emphasized that "nothing the board has done to date should be interpreted as being in favor of or against the suggested densities. There's no plan, and until I see a plan, there's no commitment yet."

Meanwhile, there were several tangential developments regarding the Odello ranch.

On Monday, representatives from the city of Carmel, the Carmel Sanitary District, the Carmel Area Coalition, the Carmel Citizens' Committee, OLAF and the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association met in Carmel to explore the possibility of condemning the property for future use by the Sanitary District for advanced sewage treatment.

This proposal would necessitate a joint powers agreement between the Sanitary District and a governmental body, presumably either the city of Carmel or the county.

No action was taken, and those in attendance agreed to meet again in the near future when they have a clearer idea of what might be possible.

At still another meeting, Theodore J. Labhard of Sacramento, attorney for Bruno and Emilio Odello, met with state and county officials and Fred Farr, president of OLAF, last week.

After the meeting, Labhard said that the Odellos and OLAF "will proceed with negotiations to finalize a contract to be executed by the parties when the redevelopment plan for the eastern sector has been approved by the supervisors and an ordinance adopted."

It was also learned this week that Stuyvesant Fish has acquired an easement across the southeast corner of the Odello property. Fish said the agreement formalizes a long-time understanding he has had with the Odellos to cross a V-shaped wedge of their property adjacent to his Palo Corona Ranch. The easement extends for approximately 200 feet and involves less than an acre of land.

Sierra Club opposes high density for eastern Odello property

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club has gone on record opposing high-density rezoning of the eastern half of the Odello property, charging "such rezoning would result in high-density urban sprawl" at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

In a letter to the board of supervisors dated June 7, the club said, "A decision to re-zone would mean extraordinary profit for a few, but it would also mean degradation of the environment for tens of thousands of Monterey Peninsula residents, especially those who live in or near Carmel Valley."

The board of supervisors recently appointed itself as a redevelopment agency to pave the way for acquisition of the western 155 acres of the Odello artichoke ranch through funds raised by taxing development of the eastern half.

The most recent rezoning application filed by the Odellos requests 627 residential and resort units. This proposal was met with strong opposition from many local organizations who suggest that 100 units on the easterly 137 acres would generate enough tax funds to acquire the western half.

Complete text of the letter from the Sierra Club follows:

The Ventana Chapter of Sierra Club urges the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to deny the rezoning application for the 137-acre portion of the Odello property east of Highway 1 bridge over Carmel River.

The Chapter has more than 1,700 members who live in Monterey County, most of them on the Monterey Peninsula. It believes that such re-zoning would result in high-density urban sprawl at the mouth of Carmel Valley. It would eliminate an open space which has been precious for generations not only to residents of the Peninsula but to those who come here as visitors.

It would open the way to similar zoning—and therefore higher population density than we already have—in Carmel Meadows, Carmel Highlands and right on down the Coast. It would encourage high density development of the Fish Ranch.

High density population at the Carmel Valley mouth would multiply already serious problems of traffic congestion, air and water pollution, sewage and solid waste disposal and water supply.

Since it would mean building on a large scale in an area which can only be defined as a flood plain, it would increase already heavy pressures for channelization of the Carmel River.

A decision to re-zone would mean extraordinary profit for a few, but it would also mean degradation of the environment for tens of thousands of Monterey Peninsula residents, especially those who live in or near Carmel Valley.

The Ventana Chapter urges that the Board recommend a re-filing of the application for no more than 137 single-family units. We see no overriding value in rapid repayment of the tax increment bonds proposed to finance purchase of the west portion of the Odello property.

JOSEPH DIONNE

Carmel Valley executive is deeply involved in the rapidly changing educational world

By PAT GRIFFITH

A GENERATION AGO, when children took tests in school, tests were tests and nothing more. It was a no-nonsense, yes-or-no, right-or-wrong, either you pass or you fail proposition.

Tests were scored, graded, recorded and returned, and that was that. For better or worse, the class moved along to the next chapter or the next grade, where more tests would mark the passage of time and, presumably, the accumulation of knowledge.

A lot has changed in recent years. Across the nation, schools have stopped lumping children together by inflexible age groupings and instead have turned more and more to individualized instruction in mixed-age groups.

In this setting, old-style tests designed to give a final verdict on the ranking of each student in relation to the class as a whole are no longer sufficient. In many cases that information isn't even relevant.

If learning is to be tailor-made to fit the particular needs of an individual child, teachers need tests which are diagnostic and define the precise areas in which the child needs instruction. Beyond that, the teacher needs to know what textbooks, visual aids, work sheets or specialized equipment are available to meet the specific need of the individual student.

This is where an educator such as Joseph Dionne of Carmel Valley enters the picture.

A former teacher, guidance counselor and research scientist for an educational institute in New York, Dionne heads the bustling California Test Bureau-McGraw Hill office overlooking the Monterey airport.

Here a highly trained staff works with school districts and state offices of education across the country in trying to raise the level of instruction and level of student performance.

"I think that there has been a committment to the individual in education from the beginning of our country," Dionne says. "We believe as a society that progress comes as each individual maximizes his potential.

"THE TURNING POINT came after World War II, when GI's were going back to school and getting their education on the GI bill. This caught the attention of the economists, who suddenly saw this education as the best investment in our Gross National Product.

"But with all this emphasis on individual education comes the question of accountability. If the welfare of society depends on education, then every time a child fails or drops out, that's a loss to society.

"What we're saying now is that the onus for accountability is on the school. It is the school, and the teacher, who become responsible for whether or not the child learns."

Until it was acquired by McGraw Hill five years ago, California Test Bureau was what its name implied—a company which developed and marketed tests for mass use. One of its major achievements was the Comprehensive test of Basic Skills, given to three million children annually in grades 3 to 10.

When it became CTB-McGraw Hill, emphasis began to shift. An outstanding research and development staff was recruited from applicants who met the minimum requirements of having a master's degree and at least five years' experience as a teacher.

"We began to change," Dionne continued. "Rather than just supplying testing materials, we moved into the area of providing information for decision-making.

"The most important moment comes when the teacher faces the child and has to answer the question: 'What do I do next with this child?' The teacher needs an answer that is diagnostic and prescriptive."

This has led Dionne and his staff, which varies from a normal of 160 to over 200 during peak scoring periods, into designing "instrumental management systems."

Working with school districts or, in some cases, entire states, the staff takes the instructional goals set up by the school boards involved and attempts to put together a program that will meet them.

This includes designing tests which will show whether or not specific local objectives are being met, compiling information on all the educational materials available to a school district to meet those specific objectives, training teachers on the use of these materials, and providing reports on just where each child is and what he needs next.

AT EVERY STEP there is built-in evaluation to see if the teacher is receiving the help promised in terms of supplies or special assistance, to see if children are progressing as expected, and to see if the goals established by the community are being achieved.

"The idea of evaluation now is to take extra steps to see how you're doing as you go along, rather than just when the year is over," Dionne explains. "If changes are necessary, they can be made in the course of the year, so that time and effort aren't wasted."

Dionne warns that the emphasis on individualized instruction poses "the danger of ending up with a sterile curriculum, in which you only teach skills and knowledge to the detriment of attitudes and values."

JOSEPH DIONNE of Carmel Valley, who heads the California Test Bureau-McGraw Hill in Monterey, is the man who evaluates the evaluations of classroom procedures and student performance in school districts dotted across the country.

To be sure that this doesn't happen, still other evaluation techniques are used, ranging from visits to classrooms to tests which measure attitudinal changes to closed circuit TV monitors.

When CTB works with a school district anywhere in the country, periodic tests are flown to Monterey and fed into computers for scoring. Instructional tests are evaluated and sent back to teachers within 10 days, and other tests get back within 20 days.

It is this speed that makes possible alterations or additions to the classroom program in the midst of the school year.

So far, Dionne says, no one has been able to devise a test that gives an accurate measure of creativity.

"Tests of creativity are very elusive," he comments. "You're aware of creativity in its presence, but it is very elusive to define. We haven't published anything in that area."

Dionne predicts that career education is the wave of the future that is going to alter the entire education process.

This could be done in three phases, he suggests, with the first introduction to career education coming in elementary schools, with students being made aware of the vast array of career possibilities that exist.

The second phase would be an exploratory one at the junior high level, with students able to experiment with the tools of different careers to find out what types of things they like and don't like.

The third step, actual preparation for a career, would come in high school.

"The idea would be that every student would leave high school with a specific skill. This could be an academic ticket to college or the skill necessary to go out and get a job."

THIS APPROACH TO EDUCATION would open up an entirely new set of requirements in terms of attitudes, values, aspirations and needs.

"There would be such a proliferation of possibilities it's hard to imagine them all," he laughs.

At present, CTB is trying to develop a new intelligence measurement that will be more descriptive of an individual's level of thinking at various stages of development than are present IQ tests.

The company is also doing a major study on the relationship of achievement testing and intelligence testing, to try to find a standard for each child based on sex, age, anticipated achievement and other factors.

Dionne is acutely aware of the financial pressures facing schools at a time when educational innovations and individualized instruction increase the per-pupil cost.

He feels a greater share of state and federal support for schools is inevitable, "but we have to be ever on guard that we keep our local emphasis on education.

"I would be concerned about a shift away from support by the local property taxpayer only if it would decrease our interest in the schools. The success of education has been due to the fact that, at its heart, it has always been a political process."

Dionne graduated from Hofstra University on Long Island, where he grew up. He studied curriculum development and implementation at Columbia, and later taught in the graduate school of education at Hofstra.

Subsequently he served as assistant project director for a Ford Foundation grant to a disadvantaged school district on Long Island, then became assistant superintendent for the district, and later moved to the Institute for Educational Development, a non-profit research organization in New York City.

While with IED he performed some of the first evaluations of the Head Start program and did a statewide curriculum evaluation for Rhode Island.

From IED he moved to Educational Development Laboratories on Long Island, where his work in research and development caught the attention of McGraw Hill.

He joined McGraw Hill five years ago, and moved here three years ago. He and his wife are the parents of three teenagers, Marsha, Gary and Darren.

THE FINAL MEETING of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel Guild for the current year was a luncheon held on Wednesday in Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. Roy Kaminske had decorated the tables with yellow carnations and sweetheart rosebuds for the luncheon which was prepared and served by committee members consisting of Mrs. Norman Bundgard, Mrs. S.N. Trevino, Mrs. Ed Mayfield, Mrs. Roy Kaminske, Mrs. Vera Stokes and Mrs Elsie Siemens. Installing officer, Mrs. Joseph Baudouin, presented the president's gavel to Mrs. Peter Wangoe and corsages to each of the incoming officers who included: Mrs. John Power, vice president; Mrs. Thomas B. McKiernon, recording secretary; Miss Esther Trevino, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Roland Brandly, treasurer. Mrs. Clifford Bolgard and Mrs. Paul Edwards were named to serve with these officers as members of the executive board. Following Mrs. Wangoe's acceptance speech she named the following standing committee chairmen: Mrs. Edward Chappell, Church Women United; Mrs. S.N. Trevino, devotions; Mrs. John Power, publicity; Mrs. Robert Arnal, membership; Mrs. Theo Mirani, historian; Mrs. Joseph Baudouin, missionary; Mrs. Howard Vail, phoning. Mrs. James Fitch continues as chairman of the social group sponsored by the Guild; Mrs. Joseph Stekly and Mrs. William Meyer as members in charge of the thrift shop operation; and Mrs. Thomas McKiernon in charge of Guild Cookbook sales. Mrs. Norman Bundgard will be chairman of the annual Holiday Bazaar.

Many interesting suggestions were made to the homemakers in attendance of ways in which they may help to combat pollution during the program's book review given by Mrs. William A. Kelly who presented exerpts from "Household Ecology" by Julie Percival.

MOMENTS YOU'D LIKE TO LIVE FOREVER...to caddy in the U.S. Open for Arnold Palmer would be almost more than the average teen-age mind could bear...but just imagine if you were with him on the day of graduation, play ran a little late, and Palmer and the Marshalls put you in the helicopter used during the open to shuttle celebrities between the CV Golf and Country Club and Pebble Beach and ordered the pilot to deliver you...right into the midst of graduation ceremonies...Chris Huston, the most envied 1972 graduate at Carmel High!

THE FACULTY AND STUDENTS at Tularcitos said "Thank you" in a big way to the 45 volunteer swimming instructors who assisted with the fall and spring program at the Community Center Pool. The Appreciation Koffee was held in the kindergarten complex where the students had created a mural—the Valley pool—depicting a participating self portrait of each child! Each volunteer was presented with a paper rose made by the Serra and Amigos teams, and thank you certificates. There were flower arrangements by Mrs. Leon Panetta; a GIANT thank you airmail letter signed by each of the upper level students; a "mystery punch"—mixed by that well-known mixologist, Herb Reuter; and cakes decorated by the faculty who were urged to use their imagination and provided with paint brushes and food coloring...(all agreed that none had that flair—or daring—of art instructor Bob Skiles!) Pictured among the honored guests are (left to right): Ray Lubeck, Mrs. William Kelly, Mrs. Tom Williams, Mrs. Betty Hansen, Mrs. Ray Cloyd, Mrs. John Tennant, Mrs. Dick Klingensmith, Mrs. Vic Harber, Rick Powers, Mrs. George Sackman, and Mrs. David Weiss. Others cited were: Patricia Adams, Carol Amoroso, Gail Buche, Charlyne Canadas, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Colvin, Benita Conlan, Florence D'Amelio, Sally Deitman, Eva Doelman, Pat Farrell, Gwen Heiland, Jan Keator, Patricia Kerfoot, Elizabeth Keys, Mary Martin, Kay McCrary, Jean McLaughlin, Diane Mellor, Diane Norby, Diane Nottenkamper, Joyce Oross, Beverly Paik, Sylvia Panetta, Ruth Pryer, Linda Radon, Carline Rauber, Donna Reuter, Ruth Stewart, Paula Washington, Terry Wilson, Joan Zielinski and Susan Stewart.

STATEMENT BY
SUPERVISOR WILLARD T. BRANSON

ATTENTION READERS

I call your attention to certain statements which appeared in The Carmel Pine Cone and the Carmel Valley Outlook on June 1, 1972. The statements were as follows:

"JOHN SIGOURNEY CHALLENGES BRANSON

"Q. What specific votes of your opponent's do you disagree with?

"A. His vote favoring rezoning on Val Verde Drive. His wife's family has property interests in this area. He rezoned a parcel adjacent to his mother-in-law's land to a density of six units per acre, thereby creating by implication a future value to that land. So this seems to me hardly to be a vote that is not in conflict with personal interests."

This statement is incorrect in that my mother-in-law does not own a parcel of land adjacent to the real property on Val Verde Drive which was rezoned to a density of six units per acre by the Board of Supervisors, and not by me. The above statement further implies that I used my position as a Supervisor to increase the future value of my mother-in-law's land and that my vote was in conflict with my personal interest. This statement is absolutely false. It is my deepest wish that anyone who read that statement should know the truth. I have never used my office to further the interests of my family or myself.

I wish to thank the publisher of this newspaper for according me the space for this statement.

Dated: June 15, 1972.

EACH LITTLE LEAGUE SEASON is climaxed by the announcement of the CARMEL VALLEY ALL STARS—a decision reached on Saturday when the coaches and managers met and reviewed the season's performance of each 11 and 12-year-old player from the five Major teams. The CV All Stars will see action first on the Valley field on July 4th when they meet the "No-Stars" (coaches, managers, umpires, fathers, etc.) in a game prior to the traditional Fourth of July Barbecue. They will represent the Valley in the Area Championship Play-off with their first game scheduled for July 19 with the Carmel All-Stars.

MORE OAKS & CACTI

MR. AND MRS. LEON MINK sr. of Lakeview, Ark., have been recent houseguests at the Sage Road home of their son, Lee, daughter-in-law Lyde and family. Sharing the reunion were Lyde's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Behrens, Carmel, who are long-time friends of Lee's parents.

The visitors attended the U.S. Open and enjoyed many "end-of-school-beginning-of-summer" activities with their grandchildren, Jill, Jody, Jenny and Jeff. The first Western stop for Mr. and Mrs. Mink was Boseman, Mont., where they attended Mr. Mink's 50th reunion at Montana State. Jeff (the only grandson in attendance) and Lee met them in Boseman and returned with them to the Valley.

A surprise guest from France arrived on the Minks' doorstep last week. Dr. Roland Leroi brought greetings from Brignoles, France and Odile Duffant, an exchange student from that village who made her stateside home with the Minks two summers ago.

CLEVER INVITATIONS DESIGNED like clocks with the hands pointing to the hour suggesting the time for an appropriate gift were sent to the guests invited by Mrs. George Hobbs and Mrs. David Morris to attend the bridal luncheon honoring Miss Nancy Thornburg. Gifts were placed around a large clock on the patio of the Morris home on Garzas Road and shower gifts opened "hourly" by the guest of honor whose wedding will take place June 24. Those attending the "Around the Clock Shower" included: Mrs. Richard Thornburg, mother of the bride-to-be, Mrs. Montgomery Jones, Mrs. I.W. Cundiff, Mrs. Jack Swanson, and Mrs. Jonathan Storm. Also the Misses Kris Swanson, Marci Lewis, Maryellen Morris, Julie Hobbs and Jenny Thornburg.

NOT ONLY IS IT a beautiful installation...IT WORKS! The Carmel Valley Lions Club Barbecue recently completed at the Community Center was initiated last week—appropriately enough by its donors. Dick McKenzie barbecued the steaks to taste and his wife, Doreen, had made salads, beans, and garlic bread for the affair. The party also gave members an opportunity to say good-byes to Via Contenta residents Lt. Cmd. and Mrs. Don Holland who were leaving for a new station in Maryland. A corsage was presented to Jan for her work with the Lionettes and plaudits to Don who has headed the club's bowling team. Among those enjoying the dinner party and the community sing which followed (with Vivian Bolser at the piano) were: Sam Corona, Bill Stowers, Jim Goold, and Messrs. and Mmes. Jack Black, Tom Bordonaro, Nick Skalyo, Phil Wright, Charlie Gansel, Maury Nessell, Gary Kitt and Bud Hall.

EIGHT STUDENTS in the graduating class of Tularcitos are gifted each spring by members of the Kiwanis Club of Carmel Valley. Handsome Webster dictionaries are presented annually to students selected by members of the faculty on a basis of achievement, effort and improvement. Fifth graders receiving the 1972 honors were (front, left to right): Andy Beckett and Justin Ward. (Seated, center): Deborah Hentges, Tom Williams, principal, and Kim Pearson. (Standing, back, left to right): Joey Sturgill, Clay Neill, Chris Fromm, Mickey Cummings.

WHEN FORMER VALLEY-ITE Mrs. William H. Walker paid an all-too-brief visit to the Valley recently, many of her old friends hit upon the nicest possible solution for bridging the two-year gap in their friendship by meeting for luncheon at the Rancho Del Monte Resort. Accompanied by her son, Dirk, Beth drove from Phoenix, Ariz., where husband, Bill, is associated with produce, and where Beth's creative talents were discovered—embarking her on an exciting career of interior decorating. Among those giving Beth a warm welcome "home" were: (left to right) Mmes. Frances Simmons, Nick Skalyo, George Palmer, the guest of honor, Richard Dick, Luther Washington, Jack Hermanson, Melvin Klein, James Fletcher and Philip Walker.

HAPPINESS IS...a nine-layered cake for a nine-year-old birthday girl...the surprise presentation made by Jack Currier last week at Rocky Point Restaurant where Miss Diana McKenzie was celebrating with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard McKenzie and brother David of Lupin Lane. The Rocky Point staff had topped the tiered gift of confection with lighted sparklers, roses and the inscription, "Happy Birthday, Diane!"

ACTOR CHARLTON HESTON will be at Pebble Beach to play in Clint Eastwood's Celebrity Tennis Tournament July 2, 3 and 4.

Charlton Heston to play in Eastwood tennis tourney

Film star Charlton Heston has accepted Clint Eastwood's invitation to play tennis in his Celebrity Tennis Tournament, set for July 2, 3 and 4 at Pebble Beach.

This will be Heston's first appearance at Pebble Beach, although he takes part in numerous tournaments throughout southern California. He teamed with producer Wendell Niles jr., to win the Motion Picture Tennis Tournament in 1970.

Also scheduled to play at Pebble Beach are Claudine Longet, Doug McClure, Merv Griffin and Jonathan Winters.

The field of 80 will start their matches Sunday, July 2 and continue Monday with tournament finals and presentation of awards on Tuesday.

Don Hamilton, host professional at the Beach and Tennis Club is tournament director and will be assisted in making the tournament pairings by Peter Herb, executive secretary of the Northern California Tennis Association.

Season ($12.50 for three days) and daily ($5.00) tickets are available by calling 624-0106. All proceeds will benefit Monterey Peninsula charities.

New group to breathe life into Circle Theater

A new theater organization has been formed in Carmel that will attempt to revive "the spirit of theater in the area that the old Community Theater somehow lost."

According to Tim Thompson, a recent candidate for a seat on the city council, the Community Theater failed because it restricted itself to "standard theater."

The new organization which he heads, The Circle Players, will produce mainly improvisational and experimental theater and is now in the process of selling memberships.

The $5 memberships and the proceeds from two benefit performances will help to finance the organization and the extensive re-wiring job which must be done on the Circle Theater before it can be used again on a continuing basis.

The faulty wiring in the building, an estimated $8,000 repair job, forced the Community Theater to discontinue operations last month.

The Circle Players estimate that they will be able to replace the wiring themselves for about $1,000. And because they are not using existing light facilities they have been allowed to stage the two benefit performances.

The benefits will be presented in the Circle Theater on Saturday, July 15 and Saturday, July 22, at 8:30 p.m. The Circle Players will present a program of dance, improvisation, and two plays, Elaine May's Adaptation and Terrence McNally's Next. Both were popular and critical successes in New York and San Francisco.

Once the lease with United Artists, which owns the building, has been negotiated and repairs made, the Circle Players will be presenting regular weekend performances, Thompson said.

"I think there is enough interest in improvisational and experimental theater in the area to keep the theater open. Once we make this type of theater acceptable and available we should have no problems with attendance," Thompson claims.

He also said that because the organization is using all volunteer labor and the nature of experimental theater is such that it requires little, if anything, in the way of sets and other technical "frills," the theater should be able to operate on a budget of around $600 a month.

Thompson also foresees few worries from the many other problems that plagued the Circle Theater—mainly its secluded location and non-existent parking facilities.

"The Community Theater used these things as an excuse for the lack of community interest in their productions," Thompson said.

"If a theater is offering something really worthwhile it should be able to pack them in—even in a garage," the 24-year-old student continued.

At the present, however, Thompson said the group needs many volunteers to help prepare for the benefit performances. Some seats are being used but plywood platforms must be built and carpeted for the large pillows that will be scattered around the theater instead of regular theater chairs.

The casts for the two benefits have been in rehearsal for several weeks under the direction of MPC student David McHaren, but Thompson urged that anyone interested in the Circle Players was welcomed to visit the theater on Casanova Street any week night between 7 and 10 p.m.

"Although our organization is now composed mainly of young people from many different dance, theater and college groups in the area, we hope to attract members of all ages from all over the Peninsula to work with us in rebuilding a viable community theater. Our appeal will be all-encompassing," he stated.

Further information about memberships and volunteer work can be obtained by contacting the Circle Players at P.O. Box 4529, Carmel, or by calling 624-2271.

'Dames at Sea' opens at Studio next week

With pennants flying, the semi-nautical musical hit Dames at Sea will dock at the Studio Theatre on June 29.

This is the musical that affectionately parodies the Ruby Keeler-Dick Powell film musicals of the 1930's, and recalls lampoons of musicals from other eras such as The Boy Friend and Little Mary Sunshine.

"Recalls them but surpassed them," according to New York critics, whose 21-gun salutes to Dames at Sea when it opened at the end of 1968 propelled it into a 17-month hit in Manhattan. It was similarly successful in Los Angeles, Chicago and the other major cities, as well as in England, Australia and South Africa.

The show is a take-off on those Hollywood musicals that so often were about backstage life on Broadway, as seen from the Warner Brothers studio, and showed everybody always "tapping the blues" away. Karen Bevelander (Ruby) plays a wide-eyed hayseed from Utah who breaks into a tap-dance like Ruby Keeler and Eleanor Powell rolled into one -- and gets the job.

She is accompanied by Fred White Buck as a sailor - whose name by coincidence is Dick -- who had caught her as she was fainting from hunger in the bus station, and he tosses off new songs for the musical as casually as he might say "hello".

Donna J.R. Conne (Mona) as the sultry, predatory Big Star of the show, of course tries to vamp handsome Dick away from the starry-eyed innocent Ruby, and all the other cherished, preposterous plot devices and absurd song-cues follow inevitably with such simple Tin-Pan Alley rhymes as "Go look for the gold mine that comes with the sunshine," and little Ruby's remark (when the harried director says helplessly as he loses his theatre on the brink of its opening -- "We got to move seven tons of costumes and scenery"), "I'll help you, Mr. Hennessey."

Bill Kramp (Hennessey) is to play that frantic director, and later captain of the battleship where the show does miraculously open. Jeannie M. Hughes (Joan) will appear as the good-hearted chorus girl friend named Joan (with a bow to Joan Blondell who used to play such parts in the musical films), and Frank Silva will be seen as Lucky, Dick's jack-tar buddy.

George Haimsohn and Robin Miller are authors of the book and lyrics of Dames at Sea that never miss an unoriginal beat, and Jim Wise is composer of the music that catches the manner of such 30's film-musicals as 42nd Street, The Gold Diggers of 1933 (and 1935), Footlight Parade and In Caliente.

The note of nostalgic, genial recollection of the corn of the 30's is being instilled into the production by director Bill Asp and producer Robert H. Evans Jr. is supplying the aptly out-of-date scenery.

Reservations may be made by calling the Studio Theatre-Restaurant at 624-1661 or 373-7438.

Auditions Sunday and Monday for Hidden Valley's 'The King and I'

The Theatre Division of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars, under the direction of Michael Keller, announces auditions for The King And I, the first of four major musical productions to be presented at Sunset Theatre during the 1972-73 season.

The King And I, with the lush melodic music and lyrics of Rodgers and Hammerstein, is unique in that it is adapted from a true-life story, Anna and the King of Siam, a biography based on actual diaries. The familiar story is a gripping and human one, told against the brilliant background of the Siamese court in the 1860's. It depicts the inner life of an Oriental court, and of the brave Englishwoman who went to that court to teach English and democracy to the Siamese King's 67 children.

CORIE (JOYCE KORNREICH), in newly-wed bliss over her first apartment, is oblivious to the exhaustion of her mother (Gertrude Chappell) who is "pooped" after climbing six flights of stairs to reach her. Son-in-law Jay Roudebush helps out. The action is in Neil Simon's comedy hit 'Barefoot in the Park' which closes Saturday at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant after a successful run. Reservations can be made by calling 624-1661 or 373-7438. (photo by Steven Gann)

Auditions for the 40-member cast will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday and Monday in Room 20 at Sunset Center. Rehearsals begin on July 10 and the show will play five performances opening Sept. 28.

Those trying out for soloists will be required to sing at least one selection from The King And I. Musical Director and Conductor Stephen Tosh will accompany the auditions, and Akemi Ito, choreographer, will audition male and female dancers to perform the Small House of Uncle Thomas Ballet.

Twelve youngsters, ages 5 to 15, are required to fill the roles of the King's children and must be able to sing Getting to Know You as a group and perform the famous March of the Siamese Children.

Major singing roles are: Lady Thiang, the King's head wife, age 40, elegant and poised, an alto to sing the poignant lyrics to Something Wonderful; Tuptim, soprano, the unhappy princess who is killed when she defies the King; and Lun Tha, tenor, in love with Tuptim.

Major acting roles are: The Interpreter, male over 20; The Kralahome, a strong appearance of strength and power, second in command to the King; Louis, an English boy of 12; Prince Chulalongkorn, age 15, the King's son; Capt. Orton, a middle-aged Englishman; Phra Alack, any age, the King's Secretary; Sir Edward Ramsey, about 40, British Ambassador; and 12 Royal Wives, ages 18 to 40.

Hidden Valley announced that the role of Mongkut, the King of Siam, will be played by Jon Baldwin, who earlier this year portrayed King Arthur in Camelot. Jane Strauch, an actress with an extensive background in music theatre is cast as Anna, the English governess. With the exception of these two roles, all other players will be cast on a competitive basis. The tryouts are open to all Peninsula residents.

Previously announced musicals for the 1972-73 season are: The Pirates of Penzance, Dec. 6-9; Carousel, March 8-11; and Kiss Me Kate, April 26-29.

For additional information call 624-6911, or contact the theatre office Room 5, Sunset Center.

Marx Brothers, Chaplin, others at MPC Friday

The Marx Brothers in their 1932 classic Horse Feathers, Buster Keaton, Laurel and Hardy, The Little Rascals and Charlie Chaplin in The Adventurer will be featured in an evening of outstanding film comedy tomorrow (Friday) at Monterey Peninsula College.

The program is the first of five in "The Great American Comedy Film Festival" being presented by the MPC Film Appreciation Club this summer and will be screened once at 8 p.m. in Lecture Forum 103.

Horse Feathers was chosen by the club for the Festival because it is not only one of the funniest movies ever made, but one that epitomizes the Marx Brothers at their best. The comedy was directed by Norman McLeod.

Also on the bill is Laurel and Hardy in The Chimp, Buster Keaton in Balloonatics, The Little Rascals in Honkey Donkey, and Chaplin in his great classic short The Adventurer.

Further information about the series, which will be presenting the best of W.C. Fields, Chaplin, Keaton, Laurel and Hardy and a host of other comedians from "The Golden Age of Comedy," can be obtained by contacting the club through the Student Activities Desk at the college.

A $1 admission will be asked at the door.

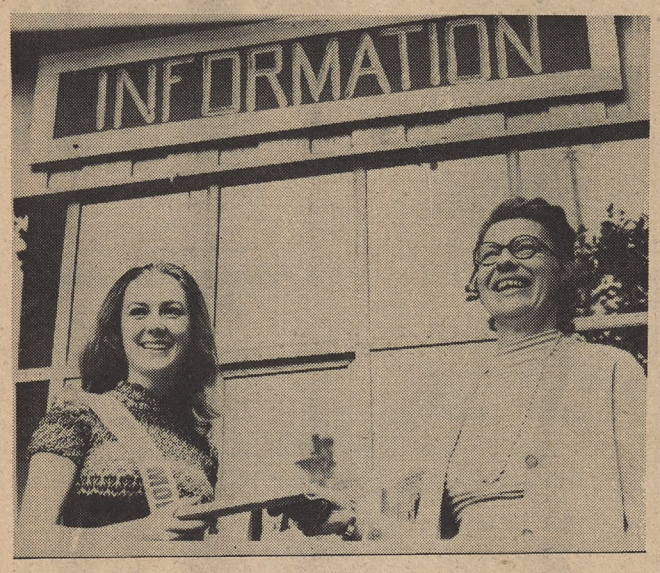
$64,000 in premiums at County Fair this year



DISPENSERS OF DATA Debbie Elder, Miss Monterey County of 1972 and Maxine Knox, both of Pacific Grove, go to the source for the information they need on the coming Monterey County Fair, Aug. 9 through 13. They are studying the 1972 premium book, just mailed to 1970 and 1971 exhibitors last week, to find out what will be new and different at the coming fair. More copies of the book are available from the office on the fairgrounds in Monterey. (Photo by Rich Hughett).

A $64,000 cash giveaway was announced to the residents of the central coast area this week.

The cash giveaway, and rules for sharing in it, are catalogued in the 1972 premium book of Monterey County Fair. The book was mailed this week to all exhibitors at the 1970 and 1971 Monterey County Fairs.

Dates for the 1972 fair are Aug. 9 through 13.

The $64,000 is the amount of cash premiums to be given to exhibitors at the coming fair—but there is still more to win. The book lists 45 additional prizes and awards to be given to youth exhibitors at the fair.

There are several new fields for competition outlined in the 1972 premium list. For the first time there is a division for light horse competition for Future Farmers of America members. 4-H youngsters have had their horse show in past years, but entry has not been open to FFA members.

The show is a one-day event on Aug. 9. Stall space will not be available. There are three classes of competition: A halter group, an equitation class and a showmanship class. The 4-H horse show also is scheduled for Aug. 9.

New for 4-H competition is the division for dairy goats. There is also a greatly-expanded biological science department with divisions for exhibits in the fields of entomology, forestry veterinary science and wildlife.

Now new, but a new approach, is the central theme for flower arrangers. In 12 arrangement classes, the theme is "Shakespeare's Flowers" with a quotation from a different Shakespearean play as the sub-theme for each class.

Overall theme for the 1972 Monterey County Fair is "Legends." Special Events Director Ed Pio has planned entertainment and grounds decoration which will convert the fairgrounds to the look of a medieval jousting grounds for the five days of the fair.

Residents of the central coast area who plan to exhibit at the coming fair, but who didn't get a copy of the premium list, may get one by calling at the fairgrounds administration office in Monterey, between the hours of 9 a.m. and noon, and 1 and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Or they may drop a postcard to Monterey County Fair at P.O. Box 1151, Monterey and ask to have a premium list mailed to them.

Copies are also available at the Monterey County Farm Advisor's Office in Salinas or at the Salinas Valley Fair Office in King City.

The first deadline for the August fair is for junior livestock exhibitors. They must have their entry blanks returned to the fairgrounds office by 5 p.m. on July 3. 4-H Club rabbit exhibitors also must have their blanks returned by that time.

Sunset views:

Did you know: meeting rooms are available at Sunset Center

By FRANK RILEY, CULTURAL DIRECTOR

BEFORE WRITING this column each week, I generally look over our scheduling book carefully to see what earth-shaking events are in the offing and thus bring them to your attention before they pass by unnoticed.

For the last couple of weeks I have been particularly impressed with the number of small meetings that now turn up on our book. Did you realize that if you want to get a group together for a meeting or a conference or a lecture, or even for just a little social gathering, it is possible to do so right here at Sunset? Both Rooms 3 and 4 are available for such purposes, and if one of them is not big enough, then 20 (it used to be the cafeteria) is available for groups of 150 or more. Think about it next time you are elected "chairman". We do the set-up and cleaning up -- you might find it a lot handier than having to re-arrange the living room at home.

THE LAST SEGMENT of the five-part Museum Without Walls film series will be shown at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, the 28th. It consists of two films -- one on The Cubist Epoch and the other capturing the essence of one of art's most revolutionary periods, Germany - Dada. Even if you have missed the other films of the series, I think you would enjoy this program. Tickets are on sale at the door.

THE MARJORIE EVANS GALLERY exhibit of Three European Printmakers elicited a strange comment from many of our visitors. "Oh, these are real, aren't they." And the answer is, "Yes, these are the real etchings, aquatints, and lithographs pulled from the original plates and stones by the artists." Many signed. All genuine. The exhibit remains until Saturday, July 1. We hope you will be sure to take the opportunity to visit the new gallery before the show is replaced.

The replacement, by the way, will be an exhibit entitled, Bachania. It comes from Stuttgart, Germany, by special arrangement made with the German Counsul General and the management of the Carmel Bach Festival. It should open about July 10.

MUCH OF THE Sunset Center facility will be occupied for the remainder of this week by the members of the Association for Vascular Surgery whose 450 or more members will be meeting in Carmel. We welcome them to our building and to our community.

LOOKING FORWARD a week, we will be offering, "Robinson Jeffers: A Carmel Celebration" on Sat., July 1 at 8 p.m. This is a program honoring the Carmel poet whose work is now being re-examined in the light of present-day attitudes and opinions. His work will be presented in readings enhanced by pictures and music.

It is hoped to make this an annual event. Sponsor is the Jeffers Celebration Committee aided and abetted by Sunset Center, Hidden Valley, and other diverse and sundry members of the Sunset family. We hope you will plan to attend.

FINALLY -- just so we won't have to say, "I told you so" later on -- please remember that last year some local residents waited too long and so were unable to get tickets for the Bach Festival. Festival time is about upon us -- better stop by at Sunset's room 11 and let Val Miller and her staff tell you all about the 1972 program and provide you with the necessary ticket.

Hidden Valley benefit concert Sunday

Hidden Valley Music Seminars will present a benefit concert Sunday at 8 p.m. at Sunset Theatre.

Hidden Valley recently moved its music and theatre activities to the former White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley and is involved in a "crash" program to make the campus ready for the summer music seminars. The major portion of that project involves the construction of a dormitory to house some of the nation's most promising young musicians when they gather July 30 for five weeks of intensive study.

Through the efforts of many elements of the local construction industry and the donated labor of Hidden Valley alumni, staff and friends, the building is rapdily taking shape.

Sunday's concert will be an additional contribution of the talent and energies of students who have been involved in past summer sessions. Gathering of students from across the country to perform under conductors John Waddell and Michael Zearott, the occasion will be similar to the Hidden Valley Christmas reunion, except that in this case the organization hopes to raise enough money to offset some of the construction costs.

Scheduled repertoire for the June 25 concert will include the Beethoven Fifth Symphony and the Vivaldi Gloria as the major works.

Zearott, who recently broke all attendance records at the prestigious Ojai Music Festival, said that "works selected have been chosen for their brilliance and communicative qualities. The thrill and power of certain repertoire can be met with guaranteed enthusiasm from both performers and audiences."

For tickets and information concerning the Hidden Valley benefit concert, call 624-6737.

THERE'S A LOT OF TALENT AT LOS LAURELES: Joe, the Singing Bartender, for example. On duty after 4, he holds forth in Joe's Saloon, right next to the dining room in Los Laureles Lodge. Joe is there to see that your evening runs smoothly...from your first cocktail...through dinner...and after dinner when he entertains you in the saloon. If you're a singer (and even if you aren't), Joe will do a duet with you. Get a group together for harmonizing. There's a player piano in the saloon with over 200 rolls...hits from the 1800s to today's music. When the evening's entertainment really gets going, ask Joe to do his bird call routine.

Joe's musical background began at Oakland's Woodminster Amphitheatre where he and his charming and talented wife, Donna, sang with the Oakland Civic Light Opera. Later, he and Donna worked out musical numbers which they performed for service clubs and other groups and then turned professional. Earlier this year they performed in the Peacock Court of San Francisco's Mark Hopkins Hotel in an evening program for the Pacific Music Society.

You'll enjoy an evening at LOS LAURELES...with Joe's hospitality and musical talent and Lucille's cooking, you just can't miss.

A SPECIAL GOLFER'S BREAKFAST is served every day at RANCHO CANADA...8 to 11 weekdays, 8 to 1 on Sundays. Two eggs, hash browns and bacon or sausage; just right to get any golfer off to a good start on either of Rancho Canada's championship golf courses. Breakfast is served with a smile by Wanda, a favorite of morning golfers. At Rancho Canada since it opened, she has the perfect personality for starting a golfing day, or any day.

A NEW TREAT AT CARMEL VALLEY INN... Tyrone Cabeen and Jim McPherson have another winner with their new Saturday night summer special: delicious CHARCOAL-BROILED top sirloin...served POOLSIDE during the delightful twilight hours, 6-9 (weather permitting). Salad, baked potato, garlic bread and delicious corn-on-the-cob are served with your steak. A great place and a great way to watch the Valley change from day to dark. Cocktails served poolside, too. Meanwhile, inside the Inn, dinners "family style."

TRULY MEXICAN AND A FAVORITE at Plaza Linda is Gallina con Mole. This tasty dish is shredded chicken in a sauce made from Chile and chocolate. Served with beans, rice and tortillas. PLAZA LINDA has completed their redecorating. The new colors and artistic entry add to the charm of this popular Mexican restaurant.

MORE ABOUT RON BLAIR: Entertaining has been a way of life for Ron for a long time. It all started in Placerville (Hangtown, if you're a Mother Lode buff) where he had a ballroom dance band in high school. Then on to Humboldt State where he formed a trio...next was Sacramento where his "Solon Notes" played the Sacramento Inn, Eldorado (now Woodlake) and the Senator Hotel. In Sacramento he found time, too, to play the part of Lt. Cable in City College's performance of South Pacific. Now Ron packs them in Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights at the HATCH COVER in Carmel Rancho.

Featherbow Ranch land to be sold in 40-a. lots

Plans have been announced to create secluded retreat estates on a 626 acre parcel of scenic wilderness which is part of 2,528 acre Featherbow Ranch in the upper Carmel Valley.

It will be the first such development in the area.

According to Hal Lederman, vice president-marketing of Feather Bow Corp., the hilly, tree-covered land will be turned into 15 estates of approximately 40 acres each.

Lederman said it is anticipated that some buyers will establish year-round residence and others build vacation homes on property which is near the well-known retreat, Tassajara.

The developer added that every care will be taken to preserve the natural beauty of the land and to ensure that residents live in close harmony with nature.

Deed restrictions will contain strict architectural and environmental standards, he said, and will assure minimal disturbance of surrounding wildlife.

Featherbow Ranch, 14 miles southeast of Carmel Valley Village, borders Los Padres National Forest, where a wide variety of animals and game birds abound.

Lederman noted that a number of the wild species make their home on Featherbow Ranch property.

"We think the land is perhaps the most ideal in California for its proposed use," the developer said. "In more than a century as a ranch it has remained a largely untouched wilderness.

"Nature was extremely kind. Foliage is abundant, with the lovely white oak tree dominant. The land rolls charmingly, ranging in elevation from 1,200 to 3,200 feet. Skies are clear and protected from coastal fog, chill and dampness.

"Nothing in the state offers the same psychologically enriching seclusion without being caught in isolation."

Lederman pointed out that nearby Carmel Valley Village contains a shopping area, professional facilities, restaurants, schools and churches.

Development plans for the retreat estates call for construction of private roads to be communally owned. Equestrian and hiking trails already exist on the property.

Estates will sell for $975 to $1,975 an acre. Lederman said sales information may be obtained at Featherbow's historic adobe ranch house, where resident personnel are available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends and by appointment during the week.

The ranch house is reached by taking Highway G-16 from Carmel Valley Village southeast 11 miles to Cachagua Road, then right 1.3 miles to a fork and right again 1.7 miles.

Supervisors deny appeal on senior citizens project

Master plan for Carmel Valley Village area still pending

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday upheld the decision of Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon denying a use permit for an 84-unit senior citizens development in Carmel Valley Village behind the post office.

By a 4 to 0 vote, the supervisors turned down the appeal of Harry Bell from Slimmon's ruling against "Las Casas de Paso Hondo." In so doing, the supervisors indicated acceptance of a six-month moratorium imposed by the planning commission on multiple family developments on "excess" commercial land in the Village.

In the interim, a citizens' committee is supposed to be at work with the planning department staff in drawing up a master plan to guide all future development in the Village area.

As of yesterday, however, there was still some doubt about who would pay for the study, and one month of the six-month freeze has already gone by.

"That question really hasn't been decided yet," Supervisor Willard Branson said yesterday. "But in view of the tight financial situation facing the county, maybe we should have some community participation in financing the study."

Branson said he thinks the citizens' committee, recommended by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, represents a "good cross-section of the community" and will be "a hard-working group."

Those who have agreed to serve on it include Mel Blevens, Bill Brown, Almira Davis, Lou Gardner, Bob Kvenild, Bill Ricker and Ken Van Hagen.

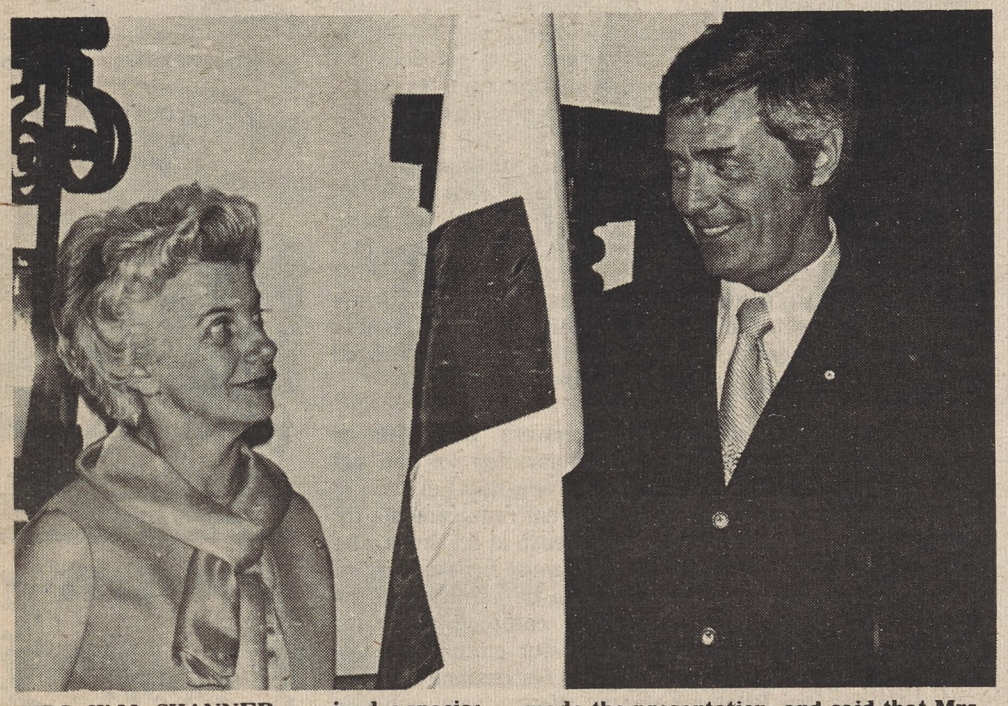
In moving Tuesday to deny Bell's appeal, Branson said he feels there should be a master plan for the Village and that it was unfortunate that Bell felt his application couldn't wait until a plan was prepared.

Attorney Brian Finegan, who represented Bell, argued that the proposed development met the suggestions of a 1965 report which recommended that "excess" commercially-zoned land in the Village be used for garden apartments.

However, Bill Brown, president of the CVPOA, noted that the 1965 study also emphasized that this use should be based on a master plan for the entire area.

Slimmon told the supervisors that the study made seven years ago was accepted but never implemented by either the planning commission or the board of supervisors, thus leading to current uncertainty over precisely which lots should be considered "excess" and which should be saved for future commercial development.

Branson's move to deny Bell's appeal was seconded by Supervisor Loren Smith. Not voting was Supervisor Arthur Atteridge of Salinas, who was absent.



MRS. W.M. SHANNER received a special citation as well as praise for her many years as head of Volunteer Service for the Carmel Red Cross Chapter. Howard Hoops, a Red Cross executive from San Francisco, made the presentation, and said that Mrs. Shanner has agreed to be a special advisor on volunteer service for the Central Coast area.

Other officers installed were Charles Mohn, first vice chairman; Anne Barrows, second vice-chairman; E. James Mulrooney, treasurer; and Mrs. Stephen Schaffer, secretary.

The new board of directors for the 1972-'73 year was also sworn in. They are Graham Adams, Don Cummings jr., Capt. William Ellis, Capt. Frank Falge, Miss Helen Heavey, Miss Dorothy James, Jay Hopkins, Capt. Robert Meloney, Donald Nelson, Mrs. Rogers Parratt, Harold Reliford, Mrs. Frank Sarett, Mrs. Frances Scott, Howard Sehlin, Mrs. Harold Snow, Mervin Sutton, F. Douglas Tellwright, Mrs. Van Court Warren, Mrs. Saul Weingarten and Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy White.

Six special awards were presented by Don Nelson, retiring president.

Former Chapter Chairman August Johnson was given an award for his service as chairman for two years and for his tenure on the board for six years.

George M. Dobry, editor and publisher of The Carmel Pine Cone and The Carmel Valley Outlook was given an award in appreciation of the newspapers' coverage of Red Cross programs and for public service.

Volunteer Chairman Harriet Shanner was given a special award in appreciation of her six years of leadership in the volunteer program. She was also given a ten-year service pin. Announcement was also made of Mrs. Shanner's appointment as field consultant for volunteer services for the Western Area Office, working with the Monterey County District. The award was presented by Western Area Representative Howard Hoops, who is administrator for the Office of Volunteer Personnel and Program Development.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jennings was on hand to receive her ten-year service pin.

Speaker for the evening was Richard Tomlin, Red Cross Field Director at Fort Ord. He spoke on "Red Cross -- Bridge to Humanity."

The event was held at Rancho Canada Country Club in Carmel Valley.

Symphony Association to hold annual meeting Sunday

W. Edgar Gallwey, president of Monterey County Symphony Association announced the annual meeting of the Association will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Corral de Tierra Country Club.

Election of directors to the governing board for the 1972-73 season, and a report on the artistically and financially successful 1971-72 season will be presented.

Because of the number of memberships received through the successful Salinas drive for funds to continue the Symphony series, it was decided to hold the meeting in the Salinas area.

Refreshments following the meeting will be furnished through the courtesy of the Salinas members of the Board and the Salinas Chapter of the Symphony Guild.

Burglars engage in party at Tularcitos

A group of rather casual burglars broke into Tularcitos School sometime between noon Saturday and early Monday morning, took an assortment of equipment valued at $242, and then sat around in the office and faculty room drinking soda pop.

Proof of the impromptu party was self-evident Monday when empty soft drink bottles and sticky table tops were discovered in Principal Tom Williams' office and the nearby faculty room.

Yesterday afternoon a few of the stolen items, including a tape recorder and tapes taken from the library, were discovered in bushes between the school and the Community Center swimming pool by Steve Dolman.

According to Williams, the school is still missing a Bell and Howell tape recorder taken from a classroom, an emergency radio from his office and a small amount of petty cash.

Some of the latter, however, probably went into the soft drink machine in the faculty room.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

WE RECEIVED A CALL last week from a man who needed a place to board his two cats while he was going on vacation. Now that school is out and summer has officially begun, more and more families will face the problem of "what to do with the dog" (or cat) while they take their vacation.

The type of vacation you are planning will influence your decision to take or not take a pet along with you. If your dog or cat is accustomed to riding in a car, enjoys being taken along and is reasonably well behaved, often the best decision is to include the pet in your plans.

The problems of traveling with a pet are more concerned with prevention of mishaps than anything else. Even more than at home, you must be willing to accept and fulfill the responsibilities of pet ownership when you visit strange places with an animal.

In the first place, you must accept the responsibility for controlling the animal at all times. Second, you must watch out for the animal's health, safety and well-being. Third, you must be constantly alert to make sure your pet does not create nuisances that not only annoy other human travelers, but that may prejudice people against the next pet that comes along.

If you are planning to fly to a vacation spot (and you have checked ahead to make sure they welcome dogs or cats), most airlines are knowledgeable, courteous and helpful to non-human passengers and their owners. Usually, the animal flies on the same plane you do, going under the designation of "accompanied baggage" and at reduced rates. One airline even permits one dog to fly in the passenger compartment in regular class and one in first class, but this must be arranged well in advance, as only one dog is permitted per flight.

AUTO TRAVEL, with nightly stopovers at motels or campsites, requires the greatest preparation for the pet owner, but also offers an opportunity for the most fun.

National and State parks have different requirements for pets. In all cases, the dog must be on leash at all times, and recent regulations state that all dogs must have a current rabies vaccination certificate or tag to be admitted to the park. Some parks set aside special camping areas for families with pets. When you make your campsite reservations, check out the regulations and restrictions for pets.

The Gaines Dog Research Center offers a very valuable free booklet, "Touring With Towser." Along with useful traveling tips, the booklet lists many motels and hotels that accept well-behaved pets. Write Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 Park Avenue, New York 10017.

Packing a small bag or suitcase for your pet is a good idea. It should include his food and water dishes, comb and brush, a favorite blanket, toys, a can opener and mixing spoon and a small first-aid kit. It's wise to bring along medication for diarrhea and upset stomach, motion sickness pills, a tranquilizer (all of the above to be recommended by your vet), as well as medication for simple cuts, scratches, stings and the like.

Every dog and cat who "hits the road" should wear a strong, well- fitting leather collar and have an equally sturdy leash. The collar should have a current license tag from your home city and an dentification tag with the name and address of some friend or relative who can be reached while you are away. Little use to have your address when you are off in another state! You can glue the two tags together, back to back, to prevent an annoying jingling which some dogs and cats dislike.

Any dog that is camping out should have a strong, rust-proof chain with which he can be secured to an immovable object and which he cannot gnaw through to escape. Traveling cats should have a cat carrier made of steel or wire mesh and wood--cardboard carriers cannot protect your pet--in which he can be safely locked overnight or when you must leave him.

The disposable cat litter pans are wonderful for traveling. You should have several along for use in car, motel room or tent and can buy more along the way. Remember, you cannot turn a cat loose in a strange place without running the risk of losing him forever. You must provide for his needs.

IF YOUR PET eats any of the national brands of dog or cat foods, there's no need to bring along more than an emergency ration. If he is on a special diet, not easily obtainable en route, now is the time to switch him gradually to a more accessible brand. There is no need to carry water along on an extended trip. The average healthy pet can adapt to water changes with ease. But you should carry a supply of cool water in the car to refresh your pet several times during the day.

There are certain courtesies you, as a pet owner, can provide that will ensure your welcome. In motels and hotels, don't permit animals on furniture. Bring along the pet's bedding and make him use it! Don't take the chance on your pet's good behavior. Either confine him in a crate or carrier or in the bathroom (providing he won't howl) when you leave the room. Never chain a dog to any furniture.

Ask the proprietor or manager where you may exercise your pet. Don't use the flower beds or walkways! Clean up after your pet; he's your responsibility, not the management's. Dispose of pet food cans properly, wash your food dishes after each use, don't use motel towels for grooming your pet. If the animal makes a mistake indoors, tell the manager immediately and offer to clean it up or pay for any damages. Friendliness and thoughtfulness go a long way in making friends for your own pet and others who may follow you.

YOU and ELECTION 72
MADE AVAILABLE AS A NON-PROFIT PUBLIC SERVICE IN COOPERATION WITH THE LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS
YOUR VOTE MAKES A DIFFERENCE

League of Women Voters and Safeway Stores develop election info book

The presidential candidates and vital issues are covered in depth in a new paperback book You and Election '72 developed by the League of Woman Voters in conjunction with Safeway Stores, Inc., according to Mrs. Tom (Geraldine) Houston of Pebble Beach, president of the Monterey Peninsula League.

"I only wish we'd had this book before the Primary," says Geraldine, who noted that many of the questions she'd been peppered with about jobs, busing, women's rights, Vietnam, consumerism, and a wide range of other subjects are covered in the 400-page book which costs 89c.

Only Safeway stores are selling the book, she added, as a non-profit public service. Ten cents per book sold will go to the League.

This joint effort by the League of Women Voters and Safeway to bring vital information about national issues and candidates to the local level is a first for both.

William S. Mitchell, president of Safeway, has stated that the development of the book is in keeping with a major objective of the company, "to practice responsible citizenship in the conduct of our business and in community and social relations."

EMERGENCY CALLS

The Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department answered two calls for medical assistance last week.

At 11:07 p.m. Friday, Jack Hackett was taken from 74 Paso Hondo to Community Hospital as a medical emergency.

Sunday evening at 11:33 p.m., the first aid crew reported to the intersection of Laureles Grade and Carmel Valley Road, where two Carmel girls had been struck by an automobile.

Jessica Bryant and Ann Marie Gamble, both 15, were standing on the edge of the road giving directions to a motorist when they were struck by a westbound car driven by Allan T. Klopp, 41, of Goleta.

Klopp told the California Highway Patrol that he was blinded by the headlights of the stopped car and did not see the girls.

There were no fires reported within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District last week.

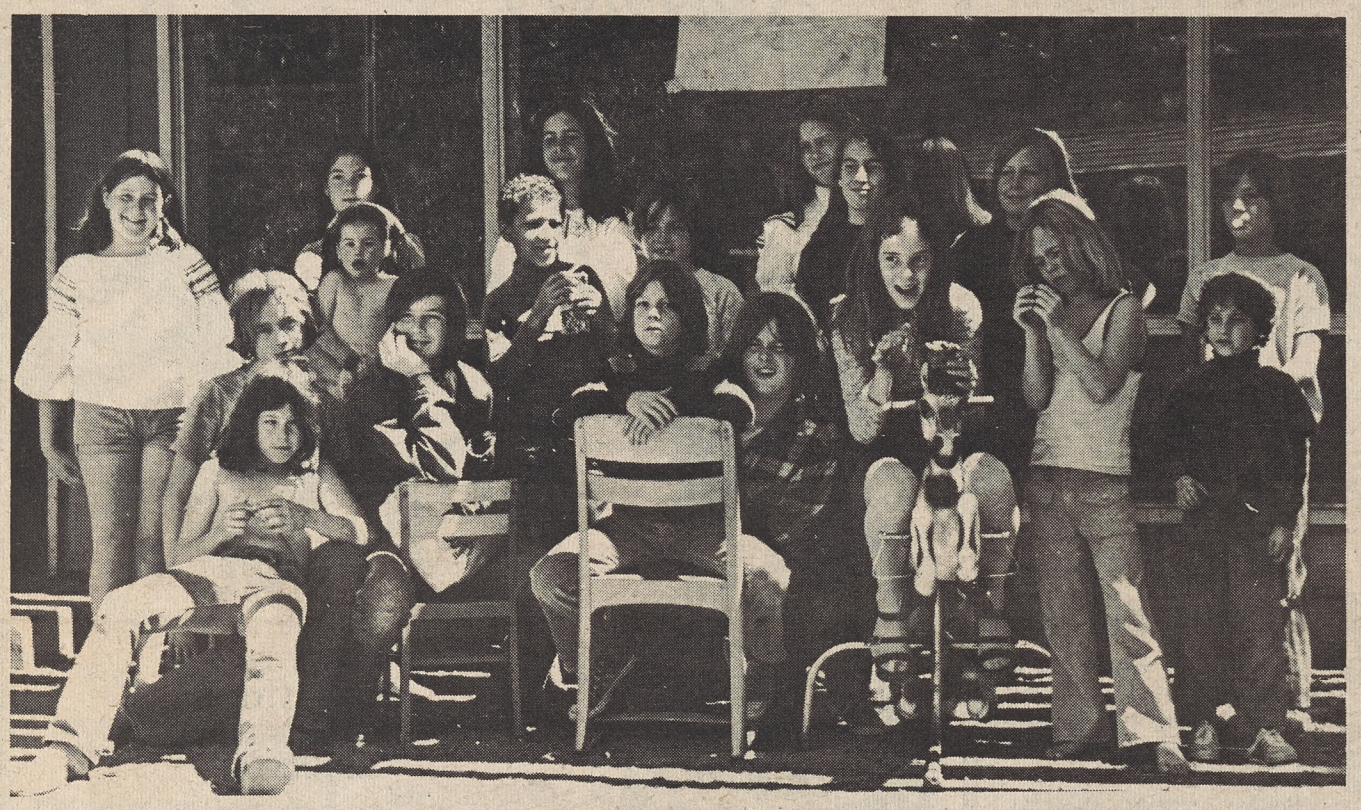
Valley students have exciting campout at Big Sur

For several lucky Carmel Valley students, the school year ended with a bang, not a whimper.

More precisely, it ended with a camping expedition to Big Sur—a four-day outing for students at Costanos Children's School, and an over-night "ditch day" for the seventh and eighth grade of All Saints' Day School.

By accident, the two schools wound up sharing neighboring campgrounds at Big Sur, a happy coincidence which gave them a chance for some friendly competition in fence-leaping and other non-Olympic sports.

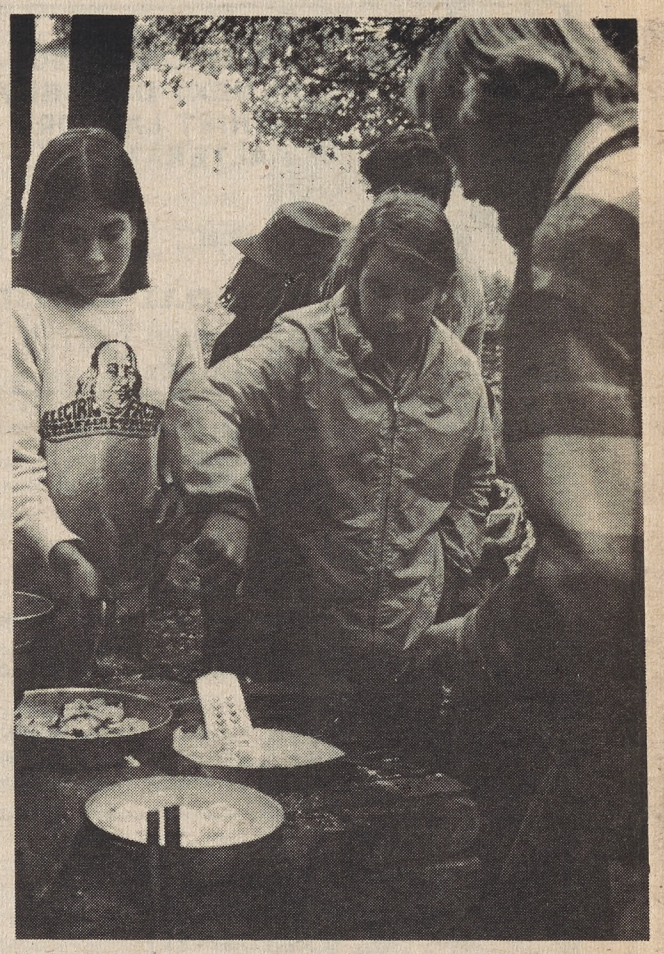
It was the kind of experience that made almost everyone wish that summer vacation hadn't started quite so soon.



THE LAST HURRAH back at Costanos School brings most, but not quite all, of the student body together for a final picture. Left to right, starting with the front row, are David Thompson, Johnny Spivak, Mike Corrigan, Paul Seybold, Mike Veglia, Angela Howland, Brian Ranie, Gata Waldman, Betsy Spivak, Emmet Miller, Mike Brittel, Teri Rushmer, James Brittel, Malina Bean, Jenny Spivak, Harry Spivak, Rhani Heagerty and Gaylan Parker.

ONE BREAKFAST coming up. Kim Billado of All Saints' School gets things ready for her stay-abed teacher.

IT'S A BATTLE OF THE TWO-HEADED GIANTS AS David Coleman and an unidentified classmate from All Saints' Day School try to topple Rhani Heagerty and her partner, Hal Seybold of Costanos School.



MEALTIME was a do-it-yourself proposition for Jenny Spivak, left, Teri Rushmer and Arthur Eichenberry of Costanos School.

AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE watches as Markus Czerbin, a teacher at Costanos School, clears the bar with inches to spare.

WHAT A LIFE. All Saints' teacher Jim Hohnke and Headmaster Peter Farmer lounge in their sleeping bags while students scurry to prepare them "breakfast in bed."

CAMPERS GATHER 'round Costanos principal Hal Seybold to get a line on the day's activities.

Photos by George T.C. Smith

Middle School students win special awards

'Grammy Goose' and 'Nuclear Nut' among the winners

THE "GRAMMY GOOSE" was won by Todd Patrick for best actor in "The Claw," an 8 mm murder film made by seventh graders at Middle School. Joe Broadman presents the poor man's Oscar.

TWO EIGHTH GRADERS who graduated with highest honors for maintaining four quarters of straight A marks, Belle Yang and Debbie Hinton, received recognition for their hard work from Middle School principal Orville Rogers.

TWO GIRLS who know their way around a science laboratory, Margaret Sepersky and Susan Fuhs, receive plaques for outstanding achievement from Clell Seelig of the Middle School science department. Both girls were graduated with honors.

"THE HARDEST WORKING FOLK MUSIC guitar student" is quite a title. But that's what Linda Shook was, and that's why Joe Broadman gave her this special award.

BEING SOME KIND of a nut—a "Nuclear Nut" in this case—won Tay Tousey a trophy from science teacher Al Kolb.

FOR OUTSTANDING WORK in dramatics, Julie Taguchi and Mary Lom received certificates from teacher Tom Cloud.

Su libro favorito, Amigos.

The children's summer reading club will find the most popular children's book in the library. Come ready to tell us the name of the book you like best. Who knows? At the end of summer, it might be the winner.

After June 26th is the time to join the book club and we will let you know the date of the party that will end it for this year. There will be no reports to give and we will be happy to help you find the good books. Be seeing you!

There will be a story hour for pre-schoolers through the 2nd grade that will start July 12th. Our Mrs. Huntington will be away this summer but we are very lucky to have Mrs. Phyllis Anderson in her place. Mrs. Anderson has been a children's librarian and is looking forward to having story hours again.

We are happy to tell our friends that our library is growing all the time. We hope that the people we don't know will come in and be our friends too!

FRIDAY WILL BE the last day on the job for Margaret Powers, who has served as the Carmelo School librarian ever since the library was established 10 years ago. Mrs. Powers, who lives on Holt Road in the Valley, was honored with a surprise party given by students and faculty last week. Although she will be officially replaced by Jean Baker in the library, Mrs. Powers says she hopes to keep helping the school on a volunteer basis next year. (photo by George T.C. Smith).

Peninsula R.E.A.C.T. office opens in Carmel Valley

The recognition of Monterey Peninsula R.E.A.C.T. with offices at 43 Flight Road in Carmel Valley, as an official R.E.A.C.T. team has been announced by R.E.A.C.T. National Headquarters in Chicago.

R.E.A.C.T. is a community program to provide organized citizens two-way radio communications in local emergencies, sponsored nationally as a public service by General Motors Research Laboratories. R.E.A.C.T. objectives are (1) to assist in all forms of local emergencies by furnishing instant radio telephone communications with R.E.A.C.T headquarters and-or proper authorities and services. (2) to promote close cooperation with police and fire authorities and other emergency services during local emergencies. (3) to provide communications at local events using the correct and efficient use of citizens radio. (4) use the official emergency channel 9 exclusively for highway assistance and other emergencies.

More than 40,000 citizens are members of about 1,500 R.E.A.C.T. teams in the United States and Canada.

Coordinating the Monterey Peninsula effort will be Chris Sundlee, 43 Flight Road, Carmel Valley, who is president of Monterey Peninsula R.E.A.C.T.

In many communities citizens two-way radio has proved the difference between life and death, Sundlee pointed out. From an accident scene on a remote country road, a citizen whose car is so equipped can instantly alert an ambulance, a doctor or police. He can also save precious moments in disaster situations where emergency oxygen or a resuscitator is needed.

Citizens two-way radio was created by the Federal Communications Commission to satisfy a need for low cost two-way radio for necessary personal and business communication. Today, any citizen over 18 years of age may easily obtain a radio station license. There are no exams required, the license cost is $20. and may be secured on request from the F.C.C. These radios have a range of 10-30 miles, depending upon geography and conditions.

Marianne Gawain outstanding graduate of SABL School

Marianne Gawain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gawain of Carmel Valley, graduated from the eighth grade of SABL school in Pebble Beach on June 12. Marianne has made many valuable contributions to the school. She is a talented young poet and recently won an award in a local poetry contest. She also played the lead in the school play, "The Brementown Musicians" directed by Marcia Hovick. She will be attending York School in the fall.

The graduation ceremony was held at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. Melanie Marks of Pebble Beach also graduated that evening. The graduation ceremony was highlighted by piano music played by Marianne Gawain, Melanie Marks and Cynthia Bottero. Sally Magee, piano teacher for SABL, directed the musical portion of the ceremony.

SABL School activities will continue through the summer at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club. Summer camp began Monday. Mrs. Nancy Bottero, principal of the school, and Mrs. Willie Belle Mason, math instructor at Carmel Middle School, head the staff.
